TOKYO WALKS

There are many ways to see Tokyo as it is a huge metropolis with a population of nearly 12 million where older traditions and newer fashions have been interacting harmoniously for four centuries. One of the most recommendable ways, however, is to venture forth into the streets on your own so that you may feel first-hand the pulse of one of the world's most bustling cities. Given herein are several recommended walking tours of Tokyo. If you wish more detailed information on each of the places of interest, please feel free to contact JNTO's Tourist Information Center.

IMPERIAL PALACE AND KITANOMARU PARK

Like many Tokyoites including marathon lovers, you can enjoy the Imperial Palace's abundant natural beauty, massive stone walls and quiet moats. You will be easily reminded of Japan's earlier feudal times.

THE ASAKUSA AREA

This walking course enables you to catch a glimpse of the unique life-style of the common folk of Tokyo's "downtown" area where the "old Edo" still exists and things are steeped in tradition. Asakusa is a district lying on the banks of the Sumida

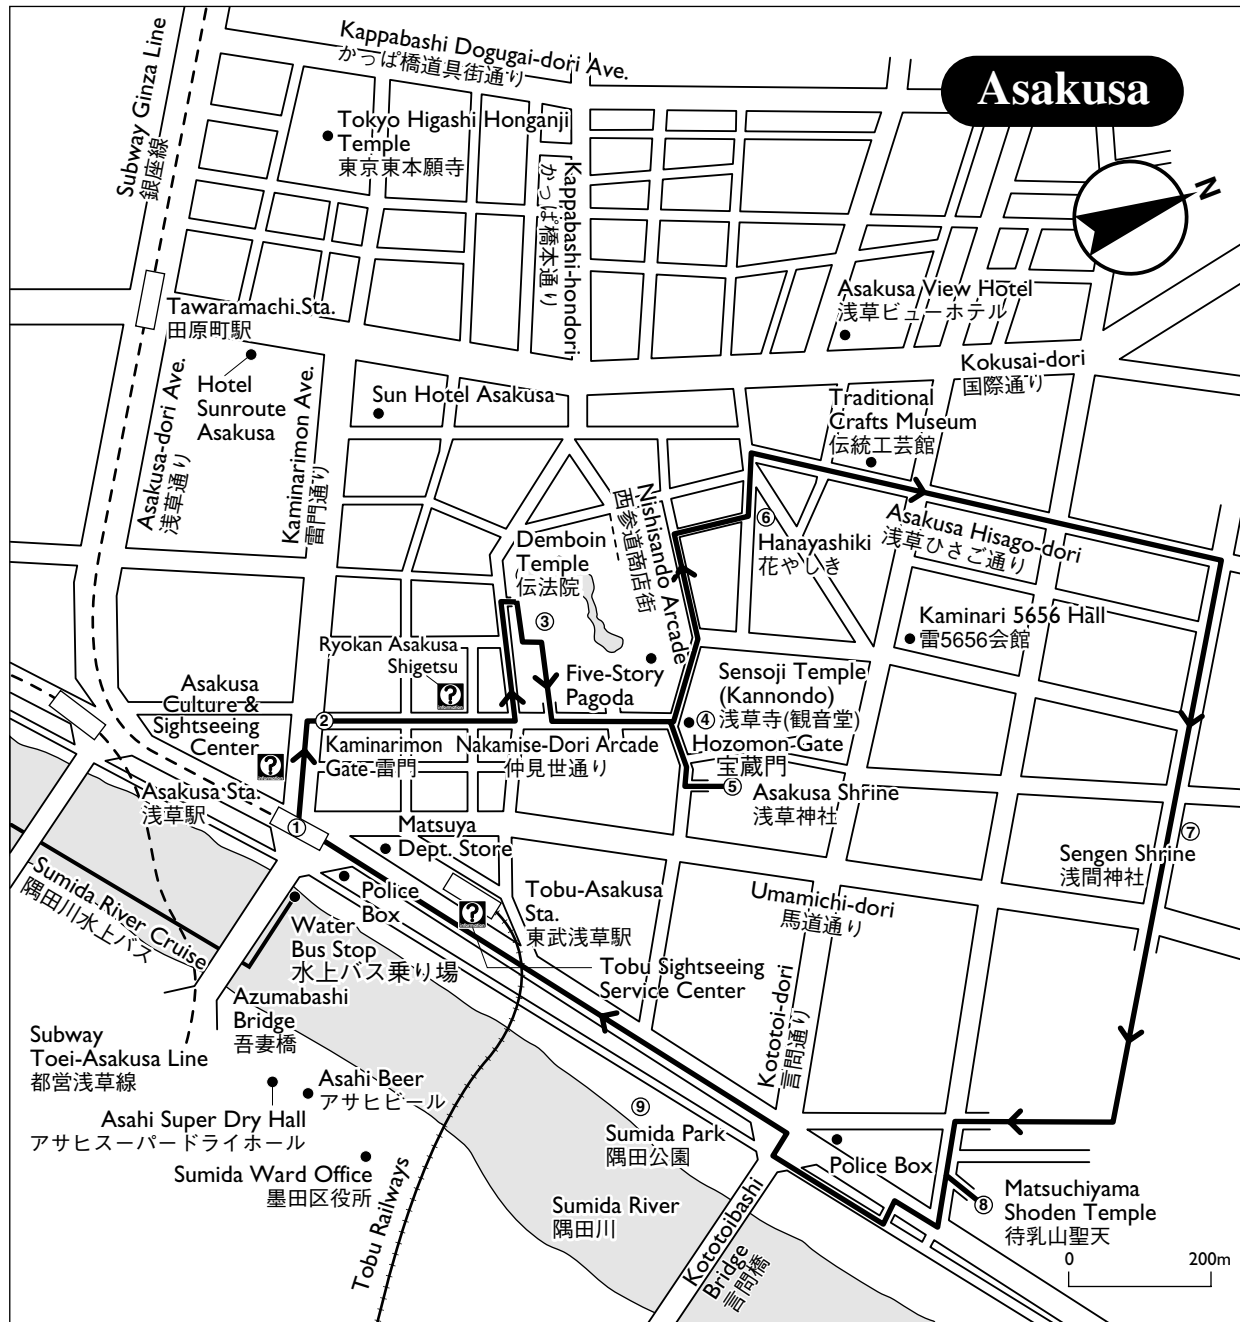

River to the east of Ueno, with Asakusa Kannon Temple as its focal point. It formed one of the largest downtown amusement centers in the city with a large number of movie houses, theaters and other pleasure facilities, in addition to numerous restaurants.

- ④ Sensoji Temple (浅草寺), or more popularly known as Asakusa Kannon Temple, is named after the Kannon or Goddess of Mercy to whom the tall main hall is dedicated. This temple is said to have been founded in the 7th century by three fishermen, who discovered in their nets one day a tiny image of Kannon only 5 cm in height. The imposing main hall, Sensoji Hondo (浅草寺本堂), (Open daily 6:00–17:00 (Apr.–Sep.), 6:30–17:00 (Oct.–Mar.), Admission: Free), is approached by the 9-m-wide, 140-m-long Nakamise-dori Arcade (仲見世通り), a paved promenade, extending from ② Kaminarimon Gate (雷門) with its huge red lantern and the wooden images of the Thunder and Wind Gods to Hozomon Gate (宝蔵門) or Treasure-house Gate. The promenade forms a colorful avenue of small shops and stalls selling everything from kimono and Japanese wigs to traditional candy. With their brightly colored decorations and uniform structure, these shops present a very picturesque sight, especially at night. To the right of the Kannondo stands Nitenmon Gate, an entrance to ⑤ Asakusa Shrine (浅草神 社), or more popularly Sanja-sama (lit. three shrines), built by order of the third Tokugawa Shogun in memory of the three fishermen. Sanja Matsuri Festival of the shrine, annually held in May, is very popular.

- ③ Demboin Temple (伝法院), situated to the west of Nakamise-dori Arcade, contains Sensoji Temple's chief abbot's living quarters. You need a permission to enter.
- ⑥ Hanayashiki (花やしき) is a small amusement park for young people. Open 10:00–17:00, 18:00, 19:00 or 21:00. Closed: Tue. Admission: ¥900 for adults.
- ⑦ Sengen Shrine (浅間神社) is noted for the Potted Plant Fair held in late May & late Jun.
- ⑧ Matsuchiyama Shoden Temple (待乳山聖天) is noted for the image of the Kannon Goddess standing on the right side of the approach. Open daily 6:00–16:30 (Apr.–Sep.), 6:30–16:30 (Oct.–Mar.). Admission: Free.
- ⑨ Sumida Park (隅田公園), a grand riverside park, contains a gymnasium and tennis courts.
